Now students can earn their degree in Culinary Arts, Interior Design, Fashion Retail Management and Photography in an evening and weekend, online and on-ground format. These delivery options are designed to allow working adults the opportunity to complete their education in either three or four years, depending on the structure they choose.

Students will be able to take up to four courses on campus along with online offerings each quarter. Both Associates and Bachelor degree programs provide up to four courses on campus per week and one on-line course.

On-campus courses will be offered two evenings a week and as one or two classes on Saturday, depending on whether students have selected the three- or four-year option, and on class availability. At the time of enrollment, students will be advised of the classes that will be offered online in their program. These courses will have been pre-selected by the student's academic director. The same is true of the classes that the student will take on campus. Students will have the option of taking any online courses on campus, if offered, but it may require them to attend a daytime class.

These program options provide excellent education opportunities for working adults, allowing them to keep their current jobs, have time with their family, and earn a degree in Culinary Arts, Interior Design, Fashion Retail Management, or Photography.
