AWARD WINNING STUDENT

While Lee Delgado was studying Graphic Design, he observed what students were studying in Web Design & Interactive Media and thought, "This is amazing – I'd better learn it, since the future is the Web." A man of his word, after receiving his degree, he immediately enrolled in the Web Design & Interactive Media program.

"I love the way the instructors here are up to date with everything. They know the programs as they're coming out. Things are fast-paced, which gets you prepared for the real world," says Lee.

Lee has been on a winning streak. Encouraged by instructor Kerstin Vogdes to enter competitions, here are some of his recent recognitions and awards:

- His design was chosen for The Art Institute of New York City Portfolio Review Summer '07 poster and invitation.
- He won two places in the Creativity Annual Awards. Over 2,700 entries came from 45 states and 29 countries. His winning entries will be printed in the Creativity 37 Annual, published in Spring 2008 by HarperCollins.
 - The "Mice & Men" piece won a Merit Award in the Poster Category.
 - The 3-page "Waiting" spread won a Merit Award in the Editorial Design Category.

Says Lee, "Winning these awards and being published in these books is an honor and shows that the class instruction we're getting is outstanding. Kerstin believed in me. I couldn't have done it without her."
