Do you have any medical conditions that we should be aware of or that require special living arrangements? If so, please explain.

Please complete the Roommate Preference Guide below. In order to identify some of your attitudes about living with another person, consider the following living situations. Although you may be matched with a roommate because you share similar attitudes, you should not expect to agree on everything. It is important for roommates to discuss their commonalities and differences as a means to better understand each other and to build a cooperative relationship.

Think carefully about how comfortable you would be living in each situation and indicate the choice that most closely resembles your true feelings. We encourage you to complete this questionnaire on your own, without input from friends and family.

You just returned to your room to find, for what seems like the hundredth time, your roommate listening to your favorite CD on your stereo and reading email on your computer. The better you get to know your roommate, the more you realize that his/her belief is "my roommate won't mind."

- My attitude is exactly the same.
- I don't mind if my roommate uses some things like my stereo but not my personal items like clothing.
- I believe that you should use other people's things only after you have asked permission.
- I think using other people's things is too problematic, so I would not use theirs and expect them to do the same.
